Miscellany

From the Christian Messenger

From the 4th Regiment

CAMP GRIFFIN, Nov. 4th, 1861.

MR. EDITOR:—Several copies of the Vermonth Christian Messenger, have found their way down here in Va. Company B. of the 4th Vt. Regiment received a package of five one Sabbath evening. This made us think that our friends at home had contributed for the paper, and would send us a package every week. The next week however none came, but in two weeks we had a package containing six copies. Again our spirits revived, and we felt quite sure we were to have them every week, but three weeks have past and none have reached us, save one or two single copies. I wish to say to our friends, if you will allow it a place in your columns, that they can in no way spend a few dollars more satisfactory to us, than to send the Messenger. To whomsoever we are already indebted for those received, we send our heartfelt thanks.

I believe it to be the prevailing opinion that our Regiment reached here in the best season of the year, because it began to be cool weather, but a few weeks of experience in camp life amid the fall rains and frosty nights, teaches us otherwise. We have many sick ones in our Regiment—fifty cases of fever, several of measles; and a great many who are able to perform duty are suffering with diarrhea.

I have learned from correspondents in different parts of the State, that our friends regard our interests and are fitting out boxes of apparel, &c., and they often inquire what is most needed among soldiers? Having had a little experience in the hospital, and after making careful inquiry I am prepared to recommend the following to be the most important, viz: woolen blankets, good woolen flannel, and quilts, good under shirts and drawers well made, will be a good article, and a few sheets and pillows would not be out of place. The three articles first named are the most important. I would say to the friends, forward your boxes with all possible speed, and feel while you do this that you are doing a noble work for your country.

S. B. C.

Parson Brownlow.

This stern editor of the Knoxville Whig stands nobly by the old Flag.

Dr. Elliot of the Central Advocate gives a brief notice of this old veteran in a recent issue. He says:

"Brownlow entered the traveling ministry in Nov. 1826, and located in 1836, having served the Methodist Episcopal Church in the capacity of an itinerant preacher 10 years.

Mr. Brownlow's natural talents were of a superior order, as all who have read any of his writings can readily discover. His early opportunities for scholastic attainments were very small indeed. Still, with the course of study then required of the candidates for the Methodist ministry, the continual exercise of preaching and pastoral duties, and the aids of such books as were published at the Methodist Book Concern, and which every Methodist preacher had in possession, either as owner or vender, the door of mental culture was open, and many a sturdy itinerant, trained in that school, was found ready to argue his way through the world, always with safety, and mostly with success. Mr. Brownlow never cultivated the graces of literature, or of the established rhetoric of the schools; yet he was a close student of the whole range of the ology and general knowledge. In short, he was too much of an original to follow the mere routine of any book or any man. The early patriots of the backwoods had such charms for him and for his audiences, that he would never consent to substitute the formal literature of the schools for the rhetoric of the backwoods. With his pen, in the pulpit, and on the stump, he retained his own free home phraseology and manner. Wm. G. Brownlow had the ability to choose all the graceful style and manner of the schools. But he would not exchange. His choice was to employ, in reaching the masses, their own dear home style and manner, and hence his discourses, and even writings had unusual charms for them. He was one of the people, and with them he purposed to live and die. He entered largely into theological controversies with those who differed from him in theological tenets. Even here he was the same original as elsewhere."

"Neglect not the reading of the Bible.—Nothing so nourishes the heart, and cheers the mind, as the reading of this Holy Book.—Theodore to Lucian.

"I can truly affirm of myself, that my studies have been profitable and availing to me, only so far as I have endeavored to use all my other knowledge as a glass, enabling me to receive more light in a wider field of vision from the Word of God."—Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

LADIES' REPOSITORY, New York: Carlton & Porter. Boston, James P. Magee.

The November number of this interesting work has been received. A thorough acquaintance of many years with this work, induces us with pleasure to commend it to the attention of our readers.

Each number contains sixty-four super-royal octavo pages, double column; printed on the finest calendered paper. Also two original steel engravings, besides an elegant Title-Page for the January number, also engraved on steel. For amount and quality of reading matter, for mechanical execution and illustrations, the Repository will compare favorably with any three-dollar magazine published in the country. Terms: Two Dollars per annum, invariably in advance. No Subscription received for less than one entire Volume.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW. October, 1861. American Edition. New York: Leonard Scott & Co.

Contents: Life of Shelley—Life, Enterprise and Peril in Coal Mines—The Immortality of Nature—Newton as a Scientific Discoverer—The Growth of English Poetry—Plutarch—Education of the Poor Alexis de Tocqueville—Church-rates.

We gratefully acknowledge the receipt of the fifth annual report of the Secretary of our BOARD OF EDUCATION. It contains much interesting matter on the subject of which it treats. We have not had time as yet to give it a thorough reading.

Prayers for our Country.

It is a matter of encouragement to the Christian patriot, that earnest prayer is being offered to Heaven for divine guidance and protection in this time of our national peril. We are happy to notice that we are not in this regard, forgotten by foreign nations who sympathize with us. A foreign correspondent of the New York Times says:

"Mr. Spurgeon makes most effective and touching prayers, remembering, at least once on a Sunday, the United States. 'Grant, O God,' he said recently, 'that the right may conquer, and that if the fearful canker of slavery must be cut out by the sword, it be wholly eradicated from the body-politic, of which it is the curse.' He is seldom, however, as pointed as this; and, like the other clergymen of England, simply prays for the return of peace. Indeed, it must be acknowledged that if the English press and Government have done what they could to continue this war, the dissenting clergy of England have nobly shown their good will and hearty sympathy with the Americans, and their sincere desire for the settlement of our difficulties. 'It praying would do you Americans any good,' said an irreverent acquaintance last Sunday, 'you would be gratified to learn that a force of a thousand clergyman-power is constantly at work for you over here.'"

Religious Reading for the Army.

The army committee of the Evangelical Alliance, of New York City, says:

"Besides providing for preaching and circulating religious reading in the camps at home, we have sent 300,000 religious journals, together with hymn-books and stationery, to our volunteers at the seat of war. In order to learn their peculiar wants, we have maintained frequent correspondence with the chaplains. During the summer, the Missionary Secretary of the Alliance visited the camps in and about Washington with this object in view. While there he was instrumental in aiding to secure an order for the better observance of the Sabbath. We are now sending, weekly, over one hundred packages to the various regiments, camps, and forts. Such a vast and increasing army, however, demands a much larger supply.—Letters full of requests reach us daily; not to be able to meet these is painful in the extreme. A chaplain writes:—'Religious journals are the best means of reaching the masses in the camps with the Gospel. Thousands there will read them, who would not look at such at home.' The Church cannot withhold these without incurring a fearful responsibility. The packages sent contain the papers of the various denominations published in our city, thereby giving an insight, weekly, into the doings of the religious world. On this account, the chaplains inform us, they are received with enthusiasm. We need, at least, $5000 immediately, for the purchase of these papers and for their transportation. Will not each denomination aid in this work so as to secure its own friends shut up in the seclusion of the camp?"

The friends of the soldiers in Vermont ought to be doing something efficient and noble in this cause. While we are doing something to provide for their temporal wants, let us not neglect their spiritual interests. Let our preachers see that each congregation has an opportunity to do something in this cause.

REVIVAL IN THE ARMY. REV. J. D. Rodgers, Methodist chaplain of the Twenty-third Indiana Regiment, has reported a revival of religion in his regiment. The officers aid him, as well as a number of pious and efficient Church members connected with the regiment. He has received forty-eight persons on trial.

CHURCHES IN CITIES.—New York has 214 churches, Philadelphia 246, Baltimore 99, Boston 94, Cincinnati 73, Chicago 67.

A CONNECTICUT REGIMENT.—The following excellent rules were adopted by some of the soldiers in the 8th Connecticut regiment, before leaving for the seat of war:

"We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to strictly observe the following rules while in this tent: 1. To wholly abstain from the use of profane and vulgar language. 2. To be present at morning and evening devotions whenever it is possible. 3. To forego the use of all intoxicating beverages except for medicinal purposes. We will strive to ever remember we are fighting in a just and holy cause, and will aim to fit ourselves in every way for the hour of conflict and danger."

SPURGEON'S HEALTH.—It appears that Spurgeon is feeling the effects of his excessive labors. An English correspondent of the New York Chronicle says:

"Mr. Spurgeon is in a very delicate state of health. I expected him to preach for me, and, with Mrs. S., to spend a few days here, but a letter from him informs me that he is so prostrated that it is utterly impossible for him to do it. A visit to Bristol, a few days ago, has contributed to this. At the opening of a new chapel in that city, the crowd was so vast, and clamorous for admission, that windows were broken, and the noise so great that it completely unnerved him, and he was unable to go through the service. Restoratives were used, but the service was a failure. The excitement of crowded places he can not bear. He feels it now, he tells me, to be a real affliction."

MINISTERS IN THE ARMY.—The Northern Advocate says: We can but admire the courage and patriotism of our brethren who buckle on the literal sword, and go forth to the battles of our country, and yet we are not quite able to see how the great commission, 'Go preach my Gospel,' armed with the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God, can be set aside by a Captain's commission from President Lincoln, or anybody else.

FATHER WALDO.—The venerable Presbyterian clergyman of Syracuse, N. Y., known as Father Waldo, Wednesday (11th ult.) entered his 100th year! He can still preach three times on a Sabbath, and he is as active in his habits as a man of fifty.

THE JEWS READING THE BIBLE.—A number of the London Jews have formed an "Association for the Diffusion of Religious Knowledge," and are about to circulate Hebrew Bibles at a cheap rate, and to make a Jewish translation of the Old Testament into English. In addition to this, the house of the poor are to be systematically visited by agents, called Bible readers.

A MODEL CHURCH.—At the recent annual collection in behalf of the superannuated preachers, taken at Christ Church, Pittsburgh, two hundred and fifty dollars were secured in cash and pledges, being more than double the stewards' assessment on the charge and nearly double the contributions of last year. Let this good example be imitated.

REVIVAL AT CAMP.—Rev. J. D. Rodgers, Methodist chaplain of the Thirty-third Regiment, has reported a revival of religion in his regiment. The officers aid him, as well as a number of pious and efficient church members connected with the regiment. He has received forty-eight persons on trial.
